Translation Services Company Removes Language Barrier for Health and Wellness Industries

Imagine being unable to talk with your health care provider or understand important information because you speak a different language. ASIST Translation Services, Inc. removes language barriers for patients and health care providers to better treat patients. The company also specializes in translating highly technical materials into all major languages.

ASIST began with a sole focus on translating written materials such as employee handbooks, pamphlets, drug prescriptions, and prescription instructions for dentists, hospitals, and health centers. As the company grew, its client base expanded to include pharmaceutical companies, medical research companies and medical device manufacturers.

Finance Fund Capital Corporation provided $1,667,937 in total financing which included Community Health Loan Fund loan and SBA Community Advantage guaranteed loan financing to consolidate and refinance existing debt. This saves the company more than $10,000 per month which enables ASIST to retain 13 full-time positions.

Today, the company provides translation and interpretation services of all types – technical and non-technical. Their in-house production and marketing capabilities have evolved to include page layout, audio-visual and multimedia capabilities, translation and project management. Overall, ASIST can provide language support for almost any requirement or technical specialization throughout the United States and in many other countries.

“This is an excellent project to support a small business and retain jobs,” said Finance Fund President Diana Turoff. “The translation services company will continue to remove language barriers for health and wellness industries that provide critical services to low-income communities.”
